

Our Privacy Policy

Hospice Calgary respects the right to privacy of our clients, volunteers, donors and employees and is compliant with legislative requirements regarding the protection of that privacy. All personal information collected by Hospice Calgary is confidential and for internal use only. Hospice Calgary is committed to keeping all personal information as accurate and as up-to-date as possible.

Hospice Calgary will retain personal information for as long as required by law. The information gathered is used solely for delivering services, establishing eligibility for fee reduction, providing tax receipts/forms and keeping clients, volunteers, stakeholders and partners informed about programs, services, special events, activities, funding needs, volunteer opportunities, and unless anonymity is requested, for recognition purposes by Hospice Calgary that may include, but are not limited to, the agency's annual report and newsletters. We do not sell, lease or otherwise share mailing lists.
